

MYTH: Mosquitos die after feeding.

Female mosquitos live to bite again and again - that is how they transmit malaria. A female will typically bite on four seperate occasions before she can pass malaria on to another person.

NEVER assume that once you've been bitten you're off the hook.

For more tips visit: fightmalaria.co.uk

#fightmalaria